RULERS OF THE WORLD.

There are on this globe about one hundred and twenty nationalities, railed over by nearly as many men, for only three queens—Victoria I., of England: Pomare, of the Society Llands; and Ranavola II., of Madagascar—sit upon thrones, of course, there are plenty of queen consorts, but these three ladies are the only ones in the world who are really rulers in fact as well as in name.

ones in the world who are really rulers in fact as well as in name.

One man—the Czar of Russia—holds sway over 75,148,690 subjects. This is a goodly crowd; but after all, does not amount to much beside the record of China, the Celestial Emperor having no fewer than 415,000,000 mortals to own his rule. Charles the HIL, Prince of Monaco, has 1,200 subjects, so that Prince John II.. of Lichtenstein, who has 7,150, can afford to look with pitying contempt at his brother on the Mediterranean coast. ranenn coust.

THE REPUBLICS.

The most populous of Republics is the United States of America, which by the last census had 38,558,371 inhabitants. Speaking with equal exactitude, we can say that the next important republicitiat of France—has precisely 37,472,732 inhabitants, and that of Spain 16,560,813. Mexico boasts of 7,665,120, and Switzerland 2,390,116. Peru, with 2,500,000, and Colombia with 2,233,837, are the most populous of the South American republics, while Chile, the most advanced of them in social and material progress. of them in social and material progress, has only 1,558,319.

THE KINGS AGAIN.

THE KINGS AGAIN.

William I., as King of Prussia, has subjects to the number of 23,589,701, and Victor Emonuel, of Italy, 23,120,000. The sultan of Turkey claims 32,490,000, the Queen of England 29,397,199, and the Emperor of Austria 35,019,058. If you were to ask the Lama of Thibet how many people worshipped him, both as a monarch and a deity, he would say—provided he did not cut your head off for your insolence—30,000,000. In like manner the illustrious Zung Che, who, as everybody is aware, is King of Corea, would respond 11,000,000: Syad Toskes, more familiarly known as the Imaum of Muscat, can only boast of 250,000, which is but as a drop in the bucket compared with Tu Due, who, it is almost superfluous to add, is King of Anam (Gochin China), and who is sovereign over 13,500,000 individuals, oriental potentars.

ORIENTAL POTENTATES.

ORIENTAL POTENTATES.

The most magnificent specimen of nomenclature in the list of sovereigns appertains to the King of Siam, who shows his good sense by subscribing regularly to the New York Evening Post and who, even on that ground alone, is perfectly justified in calling himself Chau-fa-Chula—Long Korn; 3,620,000 Simamese call him the same; so we suppose that such camulative evidence must be accepted as settling the matter. The Tenno of Japan (whose name is Montsochito) rules over 35,000,000 of subjects. In this country we call the Tenno the Mikado.

Abdul Mumed should not be confounded with Abdul Aziz. The former is Sultan of Borneo, holding sway over 2,500,000 savages of uninviting habits and scanty wardrobes, while the latter is head of the Sublime Porte, and can bowstring 32,490,000 men, women and children, if he wishes to He has not done so yet. If he did, the remaining populace—perhaps a half a dozen in number—would execuate his memory and exelaim in true Turkish style. "Bismillah! may inclasses walk dozen in number—would execrate his memory and exclaim in true Turkish style, "Bismillah! may jackasses walk upon his grandfather's grave!"

Milan is the name of a noble city in Lombardy; but it is also the name of the Hospodar of Servia, who rules over 985,000 persons. There is also a Hospodar of Montenegro, Nicholas I, by name, but he has only 130,000 subjects. The Imaum of Yemen, of whom we scarcely ever hear, can claim much more than this, for he rules over no fewer than 2,500,000. The Emir of Morocco is still more powerful, ruling over 8,000,000 sub-

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

An examination of the list of the rulers of the kingdoms of the world show that they are distinguished by the following titles: Emperor. Czar. King. Queen, Grand Duke, Duke, Prince, Shab. Khan. Grand Duke, Puice, Frince, Shab, Khan, Imaum, Emir, Lama, Tenno, Sultan, Hospodar, Hoang-ti, Taksir-Khan, Khe-dive and Bey. Besides all these there are three Bourgomaters (of the three free cities of Lubect, Bremen and Hamree cities of Lubect, Bremen and Hamburg), a group of seven Captain Regents who direct the affairs of the tiny republic of San Marino; a "Domnu," or Prince of Roumania, who just now is Prince Charles of the house of Hohenzollern; and a "First-Syndic," to whom is confided by its ten thousand inhabitants, the custody of the little republic of Andorre, in the Pyrenees.

There are two Shahs—those of Pesia and Afghanistan; three Khans—of Rok-and Afghanistan; three Khans-of Bok and Alghanistan; three Khans—of Bokhara, Khokan and Khiva; three Sultans—of Turkey, Borneo and Zanzibar; two Imaums—of Muscat and Yemen; one Khedivs—of Egypt; and one Bey—of Tripoli. Of the twenty Presidents, two—Marshal McMahon, of France, and Buenventur Baez, of Dominica—are only provisional.

FALLEN AND RINING STARS.

By the political changes of the last few years the number of rulers is much reduced. The Kings of Naples and Hanover, the Grand Duke of Tuscany, the Dukes of Parma and Modena are all biotted out of official existence. The Elector of Hosse, and several minor German Dukes, have also retired to private life, sorely against their will.

Among those who have lately come to power by the recent death of their predecessors are Johannes, Emperor of Alyssinia, who succeeds Theodorus, killed in battle; Lerdo de Tejada, President of Maxico, elected in place of Benito Juarez, deceased; Marshal McMahon, President (provissionally) of France, elected in place of France, elected in President (provissionally) of France elected in place of M. Thiers, who offer elected in place of M. Thiers, who offered his resignation thinking it would not be accepted; Oscar II., King of Sweden and Norway, who succeeds in place of his brother, the late King; Lunalilo, the King of the Sandwich Islands, who succeeds Kamehameha V., and Albert, King of Saxony, who has occupied the throne only a few weeks, in place of his father, the late King John.

Several of these rulers have lately been specially indebted to a good fortune for their prominence in the eyes of the world, and for the extent of their power. The King of Italy, in the last dozen world, and for the extent of their power. The King of Italy, in the last dozen years, has risen from a petty political eminence to vast power. The King of Prussia has become the Emperor of Germany. The President of the United States has secured a second term and a doubled stars.

States has secured a second term and a doubled salary.

Among the minor rulers are the two Henrys of Renas—Henry XXII. of the elder line, and Henry XIV. of the younger line. Both together they rule over about 120,000 subjects. Of course, like Adolphus of Lippe-Behaumburg, Leopold of Lippe-Behaumburg, Leopold of Lippe-Detmold, Louis III. of Hesse-Darmstadt, and John II. of Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and John III. of Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and Lich-Resse-Darmstadt, and

In this brief resume of the governments of the world no mention has been made of the Pope of Rome. Indeed his rule now is almost wholly spritual, and his tenancy of the palace of the Vatican is really only by courtesy of the King of Italy. A few years ago he held temporal sway over a large part of the Italian territory. It is now said that he expects to live until his ninetieth year, and see these temporalities restored to him ones more. That his life may be prolonged everbody will hope; but on the questson of the restoration of his worldly power there is a difference of opinion.—[N. Y. Evening Post.

Notice is hereby given that O. P. Sherwood and William H. Sherwood, pisintiffs above named, have commenced an action in the above-entitled Court, against Thomas F.
